According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Dairy Derived Flavors market size was valued at USD million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD million by 2030 with a CAGR of % during review period.

The organoleptic properties of dairy products coupled with their image among consumer as a healthy halo make them one of the most desirable ingredients in the food and beverage industry. Dairy derived flavors are processed from dairy and are designed to increase the intensity of dairy top notes in a product. Dairy derived flavors are also being used in combination with other characterizing flavors to deliver a complete taste profile to the final product even when there are no dairy ingredients in the formulation of the product.

Rising demand for specialty dairy products such as feta cheese has increased the traction of dairy derived flavors as these flavors offer the ability to the manufacturers to dramatically reduce the manufacturing cost. Instead of using expensive and difficult to source specialty dairy ingredients in the product, manufacturers are opting for dairy derived flavors which offer authentic flavors at a reasonable cost which is anticipated to drive the market growth in the near future.
