Abstracts

The global Dental Special Toothbrush market size is expected to reach $ 444 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 7.1% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, global production of dental special toothbrushes reached 440 million units, with an estimated average selling price of US$0.61 per brush. Dental special toothbrushes are manual toothbrushes or special brushes designed for professional oral care scenarios such as orthodontics, implants, periodontal treatment, post-oral surgery, sensitive gums, fragile oral mucosa after radiotherapy/chemotherapy, denture/prosthetic cleaning, and care of hard-to-clean areas. Their core features include improved cleaning efficiency and reduced tissue irritation through special brush head shapes, bristle hardness, bristle arrangement, brush head angles, single-tuft/small-head designs, V-shaped bristle grooves, or ultra-soft bristles. The upstream mainly includes PP/PE/ABS handle materials, nylon/PBT/curen or plant-based bristles, ultra-fine soft bristles, bristle implantation equipment, injection molds, paper-plastic packaging, dental care solution/toothpaste supporting materials, and brand packaging design; the midstream includes brush head structure design, injection molding, bristle implantation, bristle rounding, soft/ultra-soft bristle treatment, professional functional verification, packaging, and OEM/ODM production; the downstream covers dental clinics, dental hospitals, orthodontic institutions, dental implant institutions, pharmacies, professional oral care brands, e-commerce platforms, post-operative care kits, and consumer self-purchase channels. The gross profit margin is approximately 20%-35%.

The global market as a whole is characterized by 'high specialization, high unit price, and high brand concentration.' European, American, and Japanese brands are stronger in dental clinic recommendations, post-operative care, and orthodontic/implant segmentation, while Chinese and Southeast Asian OEMs are more involved in orthodontic toothbrushes, single-tuft toothbrushes, general care toothbrushes, and brand manufacturing. Future industry trends are mainly reflected in four directions: First, the expansion of the orthodontic and implant population will drive demand growth for V-shaped bristles, single-tuft toothbrushes, and peri-implant care toothbrushes; second, the strengthening of home care after oral surgery and periodontal treatment will drive the penetration of ultra-soft bristles, surgical-grade toothbrushes, and post-operative care kits; third, the strengthening of dental clinic recommendations and pharmacy specialization channels will shift dental toothbrushes from low-cost consumables to high-value-added care products; fourth, product design upgrades will include smaller brush heads, denser ultra-soft bristles, flexible necks, implant/bracket-specific structures, environmentally friendly handles, and combination care kits.
