Abstracts

The global Desiccated Coconut Powder market size is expected to reach $ 1405 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.2% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Desiccated coconut powder is a fine powder product made from coconut meat (dried coconut flakes or coconut butter) through drying (such as spray drying or freeze drying). Before use, it can be dissolved in water to reconstitute into liquid coconut milk or used directly in baking, desserts, flavorings, and functional foods. Coconut powder retains the natural flavor and fat content of coconut, is easy to store, transport, and process, and is a commonly used ingredient in the food industry, catering, and home cooking. In 2025, the production of desiccated coconut powder was approximately 51,852 tons, with a unit price of approximately US$18.42/kg and a gross profit margin of approximately 30.92%.

The global desiccated coconut powder market has seen steady growth in recent years, primarily driven by the trend towards plant-based diets, increased health awareness, and demand for natural and functional foods. Coconut powder is widely used in downstream sectors such as beverage preparation, baking, desserts, and dietary supplements. Market opportunities include: 1) rapid growth of instant or easily soluble coconut powder in ready-to-drink and functional beverages; 2) premium market demand for organic, natural, and non-GMO products; and 3) increasing consumer interest in plant-based and natural ingredients in emerging markets. Market challenges and risks include: fluctuating raw material prices (coconut is affected by seasons and climate), high processing costs, competition from other plant powders (such as oat flour and almond flour), and inconsistencies in product quality and certification standards.
