Abstracts

The global Desk Booking Software market size is expected to reach $ million by 2029, rising at a market growth of % CAGR during the forecast period (2023-2029).

Rapidly growing global population, emerging artificial intelligence, cloud computing, and big data technology developments, and significant cost reductions are the key factors driving the desktop booking software market revenue.

Desk booking solutions streamline the process of reserving individual desks in a workspace. These solutions allow employees to browse and reserve available desks across a company's floor plan, which is often interactive, providing 3D visuals and immersive features for users exploring their workspace. Desk booking software is often used in hybrid workplace models, in which a company's workforce is given the flexibility to decide which days to be office-based and which days to work remotely. However, desk booking software can be used with both fixed (assigned) and open (unassigned) floor plans, making it a great solution for companies that have both full-time office-based and hybrid employees.
