Abstracts

The dialysis industry enjoys a unique place in the healthcare sector with a comparatively small patient base but large revenue base for needed services. The industry encompasses the medical device industry (dialysis products and supplies segment) and the healthcare services industry (dialysis services segment). The stable customer base also explains how the dialysis industry is noncyclical in nature and is only minimally affected by the vagaries of economic downturns. This report looks at both the equipment and service aspects of the dialysis industry. The industry enjoys a unique place in the healthcare sector.

Scope of the Report:

Factors such as the growing number of end-stage renal disease patients and increasing number of patients suffering from diabetes and hypertension are driving the growth of the dialysis market. In addition, factors such as low preference of patients for kidney transplantation, technological advancements in products, increase in private investment and venture funding to support the development of new products, and substantial government healthcare expenditure for the treatment of end-stage renal disease are further stimulating the growth of the dialysis products and services market. However, factors such as low awareness about kidney diseases and their treatment modalities (primarily in developing countries), reduction in Medicare reimbursements to dialysis centers, and product recalls are restraining the growth of the hemodialysis market.
