Abstracts

Diaphragm pumps are categorized as positive displacement pumps that are used mainly in industrial applications, which involve pumping and lifting of heavy fluids, such as sludge, slurry, or mud. Sludge is a semi-solid slurry that is produced following the treatment of wastewater treatment or as a settled suspension from numerous industrial process. Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Diaphragm Pump in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. The availability of low-cost labor and raw material will result in the increased number of companies investing in starting manufacturing plants in India. This will lead to the growth of the manufacturing and process industry which in turn, will lead to the rise in demand for the chemical and petrochemicals industries that include methanol, ethylene, or fertilizer production plants. These production plants have a high requirement for diaphragm pumps in various applications such as for transferring fluids from one process to another. Moreover, the country allows 100% FDI in the sector, which will also aid in the growth of the industry and will increase the demand for diaphragm pumps. The market is characterized by the presence of many local and international vendors and as a result appears to be highly fragmented. Local and regional vendors compete with the well-established international players with diversified product portfolios by offering products at a comparatively lower price. Diaphragm pump manufacturers also compete on the basis of several other factors such as quality, reliability, and after-sales services and are mainly focused on differentiating their products by manufacturing customized and energy-efficient pumps.

This market study estimates that in terms of geography, APAC will account for more than 37% shares of the global diaphragm pump market by 2020 and will also dominate this market throughout the forecast period. Rapid urbanization has led to the rise in growth of the urban population, which has increased the demand for sustainable energy, fresh water, and agricultural and processed food products. This, in turn, will lead to the growth of several process industries such as wastewater treatment, food & beverage, and pharmaceuticals who are major end-users of industrial diaphragm pumps.

The worldwide market for Diaphragm Pump is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
