Abstracts

Dietary fibers are long thread-like structures that are widely present in fruits, vegetables, and grains. They are also known as roughage or bulk and include all parts of plant foods that are not digested or absorbed by the body. Though indigestible, they prove to be extremely useful in maintaining bowel regularity and preventing constipation and other bowel abnormalities.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Dietary Fiber in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. Recent studies have shown that people with high intake of fibers are less prone to diseases such as obesity, stroke, and hypertension. Consequently, people across the globe have become more concerned and cautious about their health and fitness and are paying more attention to the nutritional content of the food they consume. This change in the populace's preferences will result in the augmented demand for fiber-based food products, which in turn will result in the growth of the dietary fiber market during the forecast period.

The global dietary fiber market is highly fragmented. The vendors in this market compete on the basis of price, quality, innovation, service, reputation, distribution, and promotion to gain maximum market shares during the forecast period. To survive and succeed in this competitive market, it becomes imperative for vendors to distinguish their products and service offerings through a clear and unique value proposition. The worldwide market for Dietary Fiber is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017,
