Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Disposable Undergarment in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. The emergence of 3D printing in the disposable undergarment market is another crucial factor responsible for this market's growth over the forecast period. The advent of 3D printing technology has allowed the industry to offer personalization capacities, which can be a key influencer for the consumption of disposable undergarments. The rapid development of 3D printing technologies has also allowed users to 3D print several units of undergarment at the same time. For instance, Tamicare, a provider of textiles based in England, has 3D printers worth USD 3 million each that can produce more than 10 million disposable and biodegradable panties annually. Tamicare's 3D printing system can manufacture "Cosyflex," a stretchy and biodegradable fabric, which is considered a vital innovation in The global disposable undergarment market.

The global disposable undergarment market is highly competitive due to the presence of both international and regional players. Factors such as the recent increase in the number of cases related to several kinds of diseases, including urinary incontinence, will also propel the need for effective health aids like disposable undergarments. In the coming years, the Americas will account for the largest market share due to the high prevalence of urinary incontinence patients that use hygiene products such as disposable undergarments to absorb urine. Additionally, factors such as the increased life expectancy of people, coupled with the rising aging baby boomer population in the Americas, will also lead to an increase in the demand for incontinence care products such as disposable undergarments in this region.

The worldwide market for Disposable Undergarment is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
