Abstracts

The global Dog Care Services market size is expected to reach $ 2330 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 6.8% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Pet dog care services refer to temporary, comprehensive care solutions provided by professional individuals or organizations when pet owners are unable to personally care for their dogs due to work, travel, veterinary care, or other reasons.

The rise and expansion of pet dog care services are primarily driven by the fast pace of urban life, the prevalence of dual-income families, the increasing number of people living alone, and owners' heightened concern for their dogs' well-being in the trend towards more humanized pets. Simultaneously, factors such as surged travel demand during holidays, rental restrictions, and the increasing complexity of caring for elderly pets further boost the demand for temporary care. Furthermore, consumers' rising demands for professional, safe, and transparent services are driving the industry towards standardization and branding, while the widespread adoption of mobile internet platforms has significantly reduced service matching costs, accelerating market penetration and the formation of user habits.
