An Enterprise Content Management (ECM) system is a comprehensive, centralized software solution for capturing, organizing, storing, and securing an organization's unstructured information?such as documents, emails, and, images?throughout their lifecycle.

The deployment and upgrade of enterprise content management systems are primarily driven by the following factors: the surge in the number of internal enterprise documents and the increasingly prominent problem of information fragmentation, necessitating a unified platform to achieve efficient retrieval and version control; increasingly stringent global and local regulatory environments, requiring organizations to implement full lifecycle management of sensitive content to meet compliance obligations such as data privacy, audit trails, and legal retention; the widespread adoption of remote and hybrid work models, driving the demand for secure, real-time, and cross-device content collaboration capabilities; and the maturity of cloud computing, artificial intelligence, and automation technologies, which have significantly improved the intelligence level of the system and reduced implementation and maintenance costs.
