Ferritin testing service is a medical diagnostic service that measures the levels of ferritin in a person's blood. Ferritin is a protein that stores iron in the body, and its levels can indicate the amount of iron stored in the body. This test is often used to diagnose and monitor conditions related to iron deficiency or iron overload, such as anemia, hemochromatosis, or iron-deficiency anemia. The test involves taking a blood sample, which is then analyzed in a laboratory to determine the ferritin levels. The results can help healthcare professionals make informed decisions about treatment and management of iron-related disorders.
