Abstracts

The global Flupentixol market size is expected to reach $ 464 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 4.5% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, global flupentixol production reached 53 metric tons, with an estimated average selling price of $6,280 per kilogram. Flupentixol is a typical thioxanthene antipsychotic that exerts its effects primarily through dopamine receptor antagonism. Clinical product forms include oral flupentixol dihydrochloride/hydrochloride, long-acting injectable flupentixol decanoate, and a low-dose combination formulation of flupentixol and melitracen used for the maintenance treatment of chronic schizophrenia. The upstream supply chain primarily comprises thioxanthene intermediates, fluorinated aromatic intermediates, piperazine intermediates, decanoate esterification reagents, solvents, catalysts, pharmaceutical excipients, packaging materials (ampoules, vials, tablet packaging), and GMP production and quality testing services. The midstream sector involves API synthesis, salt/ester conversion, formulation development, tablet compression, sterile or oil-based injection filling, regulatory filing, and drug release. The downstream sector mainly consists of psychiatric hospitals, psychiatric/psychological departments in general hospitals, pharmaceutical wholesalers, retail pharmacies, and patient populations requiring maintenance therapy for chronic conditions. Gross profit margin ranges from approximately 30% to 50%.

Regarding regional distribution, there is significant demand for combination products and generics in the Asia-Pacific region (specifically China and India); Europe accounts for a substantial share of the market for originator brands, long-acting injections, and established psychiatric prescriptions; while the North American market?specifically Canada?remains limited. Looking ahead, as an established drug, flupentixol?s growth will be driven primarily by rising rates of mental health diagnosis and treatment, the demand for maintenance therapy via long-acting injections, API supply capabilities in India and China, the accessibility of low-cost generics, and existing demand for combination products in certain Asian markets.
