Abstracts

Focal Glomerular Sclerosis (FSGS) is a disease that forms scar tissue on the glomerulus and is an important cause of kidney failure. Focal Glomerular Sclerosis (FSGS) can be caused by a variety of factors.

Types of FSGS include:

Primary FSGS: Many patients diagnosed with FSGS do not have a clear cause. This is called primary (spontaneous) FSGS.

Secondary FSGS: Multiple factors (such as infection, drug toxicity, diseases such as diabetes or sickle cell disease, obesity, and even other kidney diseases) can cause Secondary FSGS: Control or treatment of the underlying cause often relieves the kidneys damage, and kidney function may improve over time.

Hereditary FSGS: This is a rare form of FSGS caused by genetic mutations. It is also called familial FSGS. When several members of a family have symptoms of FSGS, it may be hereditary. Familial FSGS can also occur when neither parent has the disease, but each carries a variant gene that can be passed on to the next generation.
