Abstracts

Food processor is the electric appliance which is used for slicing, shredding, mincing, chopping, pureeing and processing at high speed. Some food processors are similar to blenders and blenders with interchangeable blades and disks rather than a fixed blade are becoming popular among consumers. Generally very small amount of liquid is required in the operation of the food processor, unlike a blender, which requires a certain amount of liquid for the particles to move around the blade. Among various types of food processor coffee grinders, bread machine and electric pressure cooking are in high demand due to its increasing application in restaurants, bakery and home.
