Frozen Avocado Chunk refers to a frozen fruit and vegetable product made from ripe avocados through cleaning, peeling, pitting, cutting, anti-browning treatment, quick freezing or conventional freezing, and packaging. The product helps retain the flavor, fat content, dietary fiber, and nutritional characteristics of avocados, while offering a longer shelf life, convenient use, and reduced product loss. It is mainly used in foodservice ingredients, ready-to-eat salads, smoothies, sauces, frozen food processing, retail packs, and food industrial formulations.

The upstream supply chain of Frozen Avocado Chunk mainly includes avocado cultivation, harvesting, sorting, cold-chain transportation, and packaging material supply. Raw material quality, ripeness control, and supply stability from producing regions directly affect product yield and cost. The midstream segment covers peeling, pitting, cutting, anti-browning treatment, quick freezing, metal detection, grading, packaging, and cold-chain storage. The downstream segment mainly serves foodservice companies, food processors, supermarkets, frozen food brands, e-commerce platforms, and export trade channels, with applications including salads, smoothies, guacamole, ready meals, bakery products, healthy light meals, and industrial food formulations.
