Abstracts

The global Galvanised Steel Rope market size is expected to reach $ 4795 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 4.7% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, global Galvanised Steel Rope production reached approximately 1.93 million tons , with an average global market price of around US$1750 per ton.

Galvanised steel wire rope is a high-strength flexible load-bearing material made from carbon steel wires that are stranded into rope and then coated with zinc via hot-dip galvanizing or electro-galvanizing. It combines high tensile strength, flexibility, and excellent corrosion resistance, enabling long-term use in harsh environments such as outdoor, marine, and heavy industrial applications. Its typical structure consists of wires, strands, and a core, providing distributed load-bearing capacity and enhanced fatigue resistance, widely used in lifting, mining, ports, construction, power transmission, and marine engineering.

The upstream includes high-carbon steel wire rods, alloy steel materials, zinc ingots for galvanizing, drawing lubricants, and processing equipment, with suppliers such as Baowu Steel, Ansteel, Shougang (steel materials), Nyrstar, Teck, Glencore (zinc resources), and equipment manufacturers like Schnell and MFL. Midstream players include wire drawing, galvanizing, and rope manufacturers such as Bridon-Bekaert, WireCo WorldGroup, Usha Martin, Kiswire, and major Chinese producers like Juli Sling. Downstream applications span construction, mining hoisting systems, port cranes, offshore mooring systems, elevators, power transmission lines, bridge cable systems, and agricultural machinery, used by enterprises such as China Communications Construction, Vinci, Maersk, Rio Tinto, and State Grid.

The galvanized steel wire rope market is in a stable but upgrading phase, with traditional demand driven by construction, mining, and infrastructure sectors, showing mature and cyclical characteristics. At the same time, demand is gradually shifting toward high-strength, corrosion-resistant, lightweight, and long-life products, especially in offshore engineering, port automation, and renewable infrastructure. Key drivers include global infrastructure renewal, increased energy and resource development, and rising industrial mechanization. However, the market also faces challenges such as raw material price volatility, intense commoditization in low-end segments, and margin pressure, while partial substitution from synthetic fiber ropes presents additional competitive risks.

This report studies the global Galvanised Steel Rope production, demand, key manufacturers, and key regions.
