Abstracts

The global Galvanized Steel Elevator Ropes market size is expected to reach $ 4929 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 4.8% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, global galvanized steel elevator rope production reached approximately 0.72 million tons, with an average global market price of around US$ 4,800 per ton.

The gross profit margin of major companies in the industry is between 22% ? 35%.

In 2025, the global production capacity of galvanized steel elevator ropes was approximately 0.95 million tons.

Galvanized steel elevator ropes are high-strength steel wire ropes coated with zinc to enhance corrosion resistance, fatigue life, and operational safety in vertical transportation systems. They are engineered to withstand repeated bending, heavy loads, and long-term operation, ensuring reliable traction and passenger safety in elevators and lifting equipment.

The industrial chain includes upstream steel billets, wire rods, zinc materials, lubricants, and drawing equipment. The midstream focuses on wire drawing, stranding, galvanizing, surface treatment, and mechanical testing. Downstream applications mainly include passenger elevators, freight elevators, escalators, industrial lifting systems, and maintenance replacement markets.

The galvanized steel elevator rope market maintains steady growth driven by urbanization, high-rise construction, and ongoing elevator installation and replacement demand. Safety regulations and maintenance standards require regular rope replacement, supporting stable aftermarket demand. Galvanized coatings improve corrosion resistance and service life, making these ropes suitable for diverse climates and operating conditions. Technological improvements in wire drawing precision, zinc coating uniformity, and fatigue resistance enhance performance and reliability. As cities continue vertical expansion and existing buildings undergo modernization, galvanized steel elevator ropes are expected to maintain consistent demand across both new installations and replacement cycles.
