The glue dipping machine is a device used to dip an object into a liquid coated with glue or other chemicals to form a coating or seal the surface of the object. It is mainly used to make glass adhesive tape, tape, wire, etc. These products are widely used in glass fiber reinforced plastic lamination, molding, tube winding, winding and other molding processes.

With the rapid development of the manufacturing industry and the continuous advancement of technology, the application of dipping machines in various fields is becoming more and more extensive, and the market demand is increasing. Especially in the automotive, electronics, medical equipment and other industries, the demand for dipping machines continues to grow. At the same time, as people's requirements for product quality and environmental protection increase, higher requirements are also placed on the performance and quality of dipping machines. This has prompted dipping machine manufacturers to continuously develop new products, improve product quality and service levels to meet market demand.
