According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Glued Parquet Floor market size was valued at USD 25290 million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 35080 million by 2030 with a CAGR of 4.8% during review period.

Wood flooring can also be installed utilizing the glue-down method. This is an especially popular method for solid parquet flooring installations on concrete sub-floors.

Additionally, engineered wood flooring may use the glue-down method as well. A layer of mastic is placed onto the sub-floor using a trowel similar to those used in laying ceramic tile. The wood pieces are then laid on top of the glue and hammered into place using a rubber mallet and a protected 2x4 to create a level floor. Often the parquet floor will require sanding and re-finishing after the glue-down installation method due to the small size pieces.

The Glued Parquet Floor Market is driven by the demand for durable and visually appealing flooring solutions that offer the beauty of natural wood with a stable and secure installation. Glued parquet floors, crafted from individual wood blocks or tiles, provide an elegant and timeless appearance while ensuring a sturdy and long-lasting foundation. As consumers seek flooring options that combine aesthetic appeal with resilience, the demand for glued parquet floors continues to grow. These floors are also favored for their sustainability, as they often use responsibly sourced wood and environmentally friendly adhesives. However, a key challenge for this market is the need to cater to diverse design preferences and changing interior styles. Meeting various customization requirements and adapting to evolving room layouts while ensuring efficient and cost-effective installation methods pose ongoing challenges. Additionally, the market faces competition from alternative flooring materials, including laminate and vinyl, which offer lower costs and easy installation. Striking a balance between authenticity, customization, and environmental sustainability is essential for the continued growth of the Glued Parquet Floor Market.
