Abstracts

Gluten is a type of protein found in grains such as wheat, rye, barley, and others. The consumption of gluten might irritate the lining of the small intestine leading to a weaker immune system in certain people with the pre-existing auto-immune condition. The long-term consumption of gluten foods leads to the destruction of villi in intestines. Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Gluten-Free Bakery in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application.

The global gluten-free bakery market is growing due to various factors such as the rise in the number of people with gluten intolerances and allergies along with the increasing demand for bakery products with gluten-free claims. The increasing awareness about the ill effects of gluten intolerance and the rising number of people with celiac disease will further contribute toward the growth of global gluten-free bakery market.

EMEA accounted for the major market shares during 2016. The region is witnessing a rise in awareness about food intolerances and new product launches. Factors such as the increasing preference of consumers in Germany towards products with high protein content in flours will fuel the growth of the market in this region. Vendors are increasingly focusing on following strategic alliances and are also acquiring gluten-free bakery brands to diversify and strengthen their product portfolios.

The worldwide market for Gluten-Free Bakery is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
