Abstracts

Glycerol is a simple polyol compound. It is a colorless, odorless, viscous liquid that is sweet-tasting and non-toxic. The glycerol backbone is found in all lipids known as triglycerides. It is widely used in the food industry as a sweetener and humectant and in pharmaceutical formulations. Glycerol has three hydroxyl groups that are responsible for its solubility in water and its hygroscopic nature.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Glycerol in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. Factors such as acid rains, increase in the level of greenhouse gases, and an increase in air pollution are adversely affecting the environment and causing distress to the people. To reduce the harmful effects on the populace and to remain environment-friendly, the government is taking initiatives to promote the use of environmental-friendly products among the manufacturing sector. Moreover, the government is also raising awareness about the harmful effects of chemical compounds on the environment. Also, the government is also providing loans at a subsidized rate of interest and also at reasonable tax rates to shift toward bio-based chemical production. This, can further, fuel the growth of the market over the years.

APAC accounted for the major shares of the glycerol market during 2016. The growth of the market can be attributed to factors such as a considerable growth in the personal care and pharmaceutical applications in the region. Also, the rise in the disposable income and growing health-consciousness among the consumers are also surging the demand for glycerol among the region.

The worldwide market for Glycerol is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
