Abstracts

The global Gold & Diamond Jewellery market size is expected to reach $ 213965 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 3.9% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Gold jewelry and diamond jewelry are two of the most representative categories in the jewelry market. They are typically made from gold, karat gold, or platinum as the base material, combined with pure gold craftsmanship or set with gemstones such as diamonds. They possess not only decorative and artistic qualities but also value retention and emotional symbolism. Gold jewelry emphasizes the intrinsic value of the material and its cultural heritage, while diamond jewelry, with its rarity and dazzling brilliance, is the preferred choice for important occasions such as weddings and anniversaries. The average price of this product is approximately $598 per piece, with global sales of approximately 266 million pieces.

Gold jewelry is not merely an ornament; it is a dual symbol of culture and wealth. In Eastern culture, it carries the meaning of auspiciousness, inheritance, and status; in the global market, it is an important asset for hedging against inflation and preserving and increasing value. With the innovation of design concepts and the transformation of consumer attitudes, gold jewelry is evolving from traditional heaviness to light luxury and fashion. New techniques such as traditional gold craftsmanship, hard gold, and colored gold are constantly refreshing people's aesthetic perception of gold, giving it new vitality among younger consumers. Diamond jewelry has long transcended the definition of 'luxury goods,' becoming a multi-faceted carrier of emotional expression, status symbol, and artistic design. From the classic advertising slogan 'A diamond is forever' to the current consumption philosophy of Generation Z that pursues individuality and environmental protection, diamond jewelry is undergoing a transformation from tradition to innovation.
