Abstracts

The global Golf Apparel for Men market size is expected to reach $ 4001 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.2% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032). Men's golf apparel is sportswear designed specifically for male golfers, encompassing polo shirts, T-shirts, trousers, shorts, jackets, and accessories. Its core characteristics lie in the use of functional fabrics, such as moisture-wicking, breathable, UV-protective, and elastic fibers, ensuring comfort and flexibility during the swing and movement. The designs typically lean towards a simple and sophisticated style, conforming to course dress codes while also reflecting a business casual aesthetic, meeting the dual needs of male consumers in both sporting and social settings. The product has an average price of approximately $53 per unit, and global sales are approximately 51.6 million units. Men's golf apparel currently remains the dominant segment in the global market, accounting for approximately 55-60%, with particularly strong demand in North America and Europe. Although its overall growth rate is lower than the women's segment, the men's market is highly stable, with high consumer loyalty, and premium brands hold a dominant position in this area. Future development trends will focus on the integration of functionality and business casual, the application of environmentally friendly fabrics, and the expansion of online direct sales and club customization, driving men's golf apparel to maintain its dominant position while gradually upgrading towards a higher-end and sustainable direction.

This report studies the global Golf Apparel for Men production, demand, key manufacturers, and key regions.
