Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Gum in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes The market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application.

The growing demand for nicotine gum is one of the important trends driving the growth of The global gum market over the predicted period. Nicotine gum is a type of chewing gum that delivers nicotine to the body and helps in coping with the withdrawal symptoms of smoking. According to the US FDA, tobacco products are responsible for an average of 440,000 deaths in the US every year. Therefore, to combat this health hazard, the FDA approves safe and effective therapies that consumers can use to stop smoking, including nicotine gums, lozenges, and patches. Moreover, several governments and organizations have extended support to people who want to quit smoking by providing NRT (nicotine replacement therapy). The desire to quit smoking tobacco and the increasing awareness regarding its harmful effects will contribute to the growth of this market over the next four years.

Europe led The global gum market during 2015 and is expected to account for more than 34% of The market share by 2020. The gum market in Europe is expected to decline during the forecast period due to a huge decline in the per capita consumption of gum products. Moreover, ongoing the health and wellness trend in Europe has limited the overall consumption of gum products. However, the growing demand for sugar-free gum and the increasing use of chewing gum as a breath freshener will aid in the growth of this market in Europe during the forecast period.

The worldwide market for Gum is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
