There are several handicapped placement services available to assist individuals with disabilities in finding suitable employment. Some of these services include:

1. Vocational Rehabilitation Services: These services are provided by state or local government agencies and aim to help individuals with disabilities prepare for, find, and maintain employment. They offer a range of services such as vocational counseling, job training, job placement assistance, and ongoing support.
2. Disability Employment Services: These services are often provided by nonprofit organizations or disability advocacy groups. They offer job placement assistance, vocational training, and support services tailored to the specific needs of individuals with disabilities.
3. Supported Employment Programs: These programs provide individuals with disabilities with ongoing support and assistance in finding and maintaining employment. They typically involve job coaches or support workers who help individuals with disabilities navigate the workplace, learn job tasks, and develop necessary skills.
4. Job Placement Agencies: Some employment agencies specialize in placing individuals with disabilities in suitable jobs. These agencies work closely with employers to identify job opportunities and match them with qualified candidates with disabilities.

It is important to note that the availability and specific services offered by handicapped placement services may vary depending on the location and resources available in a particular area.
