Analytics has had a significant impact on healthcare business, and both predictive and descriptive analytics have had their impacts on the industry.

Scope of the Report:

With the world's population increasing and everyone living longer, models of treatment delivery are rapidly changing, and data are driving many of the decisions behind those changes. The drive now is to understand as much about a patient as possible, as early in their life as possible hopefully picking up warning signs of serious illness at an early enough stage that treatment is far simpler (and less expensive) than if it had not been spotted until later. Other factors such as need for comprehensive analytics will also help to boost the healthcare descriptive analytics market.
