Abstracts

High-definition television (HDTV) is a television system providing an image resolution that is of substantially higher resolution than that of standard-definition television. This can be either analog or digital. HDTV is the current standard video format used in most broadcasts: terrestrial broadcast television, cable television, satellite television, Blu-rays, and streaming video.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the High-Definition Television (HDTV) in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes The market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application.

An HD TV is an example of a next-generation television display technology that is characterized by high resolution and better image quality. This market is estimated to exhibit stagnant growth during the forecast period and is driven by the increase in shipments of LCD/LED TVs. The recent change in the manufacturers' preference towards the production of high technology-enabled LCD and LED TVs is expected to result in this market's slow but modest CAGR of nearly 2% by 2019.

APAC region accounts for more than 44% of the total market share by 2019. In APAC, China and India are considered to be the leading countries as they are the major manufacturing hubs for ultra HD TVs. The high demand for ultra HD TVs that are manufactured locally is a significant factor that promotes market growth in this region during the forecast period.

The worldwide market for High-Definition Television (HDTV) is expected to grow at a

CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
