Home-based Care refers to care and support services provided within an individual's home environment, including assistance with daily living activities, basic nursing care, and certain health-related services. It primarily serves elderly individuals, patients with chronic conditions, and those requiring long-term care, aiming to improve quality of life and enable independent living at home.

Growing Demand for Home-based Care

Aging populations are driving a shift from institutional care to home care.

Integration of Healthcare and Care Services

Closer integration of medical and caregiving services, including home-based healthcare.

Digitalization and Remote Monitoring

Use of wearables and remote systems for real-time health tracking.

Professionalization and Standardization

Improved training, certification, and service standards.

Personalized Care Solutions

Tailored services based on individual needs and conditions.

Community-based and Platform Models

Expansion of community-centered and platform-driven service delivery.

Stronger Policy Support

Increased government support and regulation to promote industry development.
