Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Hot Rolled Carbon Steel market size was valued at US$ 561807 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 706672 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 3.3% during review period.

In 2025, global Hot Rolled Carbon Steel output reached about 780 million tons and global capacity of around 860 million tons. The average price is about USD 700 per ton, with gross margins near 14%. Hot Rolled Carbon Steel is a carbon steel product manufactured by heating steel slabs or billets above their recrystallization temperature (typically above 900°C) and rolling them into coils, sheets, plates, strips, bars, or structural sections. The hot rolling process provides high production efficiency, good formability, and cost-effective manufacturing, making hot rolled carbon steel one of the most widely used materials in construction, infrastructure, automotive, machinery, shipbuilding, pipelines, energy, and general fabrication. Its supply chain begins with upstream raw materials including iron ore, metallurgical coal (coke), limestone, and recycled steel scrap. These materials are processed in blast furnaces/basic oxygen furnaces (BF-BOF) or electric arc furnaces (EAF) to produce molten steel, which is continuously cast into slabs, blooms, or billets. The semi-finished steel is then reheated and hot rolled into finished products before undergoing cooling, cutting, leveling, coiling, surface treatment, inspection, and packaging. The finished hot rolled carbon steel is distributed through steel mills, service centers, distributors, and stockholders to downstream industries such as construction, automotive manufacturing, heavy equipment, industrial machinery, oil & gas, shipbuilding, rail transportation, agricultural equipment, energy infrastructure, and metal fabrication.
