The global Infant and Children Bedding market size is expected to reach $ 43432 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.0% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, the global production of infant and children's bedding reached approximately 375 million units, with an average global market price of around US$80 per unit. In the same year, the global total production capacity of infant and children's bedding reached 468 million units. The industry average gross profit margin of this product reached 22%.

Infant and children's bedding refers to a category of textile products and accessories specifically designed for the sleeping environments of children aged 0 to 12. Key items include crib mattresses, crib sheets, duvets and quilts, sleeping bags, pillows, crib bumpers, protective pads, and children's bedding sets. These products prioritize safety, comfort, and hygiene, featuring specialized optimizations in material safety standards and structural design to align with children's physiological development.

The industry value chain comprises upstream suppliers of textile raw materials (such as cotton, polyester, bamboo fiber, and organic cotton) and functional materials; midstream enterprises involved in fabric weaving, printing and dyeing, cutting and sewing, and OEM/ODM manufacturing; and downstream entities including maternity and baby brands, home goods retailers, e-commerce platforms, and specialty retail channels that connect with household consumers. Additionally, certain high-end products are supplied to professional settings such as hospitals, postpartum care centers, and childcare facilities.

Regarding industry prospects, the sector benefits from global trends toward meticulous parenting? and ?consumption upgrading,? with products evolving from basic functional items toward higher safety standards, eco-friendly materials, smart technology, and brand-driven offerings. Driven by large birth populations in emerging markets and rising average transaction values ??in established Western markets, the industry exhibits structural growth characterized by steady expansion despite low overall growth rates; meanwhile, the share of online sales continues to rise, and market concentration is gradually increasing.

This report studies the global Infant and Children Bedding production, demand, key manufacturers, and key regions.
