Abstracts

The global Injection Molded Zipper market size is expected to reach $ 2585 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 3.6% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, global Injection Molded Zipper sales were approximately 2,650 million meters, with an average selling price of about US$0.736 per meter. An Injection Molded Zipper is a closure component composed of textile tapes, thermoplastic elements directly injection-molded onto the tape edges, a slider, and top stops, bottom stops, or open-end components, and is commonly supplied as finished zippers or continuous chains. The elements are typically manufactured from engineering plastics such as polyacetal through precision injection molding, forming regular interlocking teeth that support repeated opening and closing. The product offers low weight, corrosion resistance, customizable colors and appearances, smooth operation, and adaptability to demanding environments, providing reliable closure, convenient access, and design flexibility for apparel and soft goods. Injection Molded Zippers are mainly used in apparel, bags, luggage, footwear, outdoor equipment, marine products, home furnishings, protective clothing, and industrial soft goods.

Market growth is mainly driven by the expansion of apparel, luggage, footwear, outdoor equipment, and technical textile production, together with manufacturers' increasing demand for lightweight and corrosion-resistant closure components. Injection molded zippers are also gaining adoption because their tooth colors, shapes, sizes, and surface appearances can be customized more easily than conventional metal zippers. Rising demand for outdoor, marine, protective, and industrial soft goods is supporting the use of heavy-duty and weather-resistant products, while recycled resins, bio-based materials, automated molding, and higher-precision production are expanding their sustainability and performance advantages.
