Abstracts

The global International Pet Air Transportation Service market size is expected to reach $ 2708 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 8.1% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

International Pet Air Transportation Service refers to a professional, cross-border logistics service designed to safely and legally transport companion animals (such as dogs, cats), exotic pets, or working animals (e.g., service dogs) between different countries or regions via commercial airlines or dedicated air cargo carriers. It integrates a full range of supporting services including pre-trip consulting (on destination entry requirements, quarantine policies, and prohibited breeds), compliance documentation processing (vaccination certificates, rabies antibody test reports, international health certificates, and import/export permits), customized transportation plan design (selection of cabin travel for small pets or IATA-compliant oxygenated cargo holds for large pets), pet-specific packaging (airline-approved crates with ventilation and safety features), airport pick-up and drop-off, customs clearance assistance, in-transit care (feeding, hydration, and stress reduction), and post-arrival quarantine coordination (where required).

The International Pet Air Transportation Service industry is experiencing prominent trends including the surging global demand driven by the deepening of the 'pet as family member' concept, the expansion of pet-friendly services by airlines such as 'in-cabin pet travel' and weight limit upgrades, and the application of technologies such as IoT real-time temperature and humidity monitoring, blockchain traceability, and digital declaration systems; key opportunities lie in the rapid growth of the Asia-Pacific market fueled by rising middle-class pet ownership and simplified customs quarantine policies, the booming demand for high-end customized services with increasing average unit prices, the surge in cross-border pet imports driven by cross-border e-commerce, and the extension of the industrial chain to upstream quarantine/vaccine services and downstream pet-friendly hotels/tourism products; however, the industry faces significant challenges such as fragmented international regulatory standards, cumbersome compliance procedures, risks to pet safety and welfare, the need to balance the experience of pet owners with that of other passengers, and the high operational costs of specialized facilities and skilled personnel, as well as geopolitical and seasonal factors affecting route stability.
