Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Internet Pet Hospital market size was valued at USD million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD million by 2030 with a CAGR of % during review period.

The rise of Internet pet hospitals is mainly affected by the following driving factors:

Technological progress: The rapid development of the Internet and mobile Internet has made online medical services possible. This provides pet owners with more convenient access to medical consultation and services, and also provides technical support for Internet pet hospitals.

Market demand: As people pay more attention to pet health, the demand for pet medical services is also increasing. Traditional pet hospitals are limited by time and geographical location, making it difficult to meet consumer needs. Internet pet hospitals can break through these limitations and provide more flexible and convenient services.

Policy support: The government's support for the Internet medical field continues to increase, providing a policy environment for the development of Internet pet hospitals. For example, some local governments have introduced policies to support the development of Internet medical care, creating favorable conditions for the development of Internet pet hospitals.

Capital promotion: Internet pet hospitals require a large amount of capital investment for technology research and development, platform construction, doctor training, etc. The promotion of capital provides necessary financial support for the development of Internet pet hospitals and accelerates its development process.

Brand building: The influence and popularity of the brand are crucial to the development of Internet pet hospitals. By strengthening brand building and improving brand awareness and reputation, we can further attract and retain consumers and promote the sustainable development of Internet pet hospitals.
