LTO (Linear Tape-Open) tape is a tape storage technology based on open standards. It uses a linear multi-channel, bidirectional tape format, combined with hardware data compression, optimized track surface and high-efficiency error correction technology, to achieve high-capacity data storage through a single-axis 1/2-inch tape. Its core features include high storage density, long life and scalability. It supports low-cost, high-reliability archiving media in data tiered storage architecture, especially for cold data storage scenarios that require long-term preservation and low access frequency.
