According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Managed Security Operations Center market size was valued at US$ million in 2024 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD million by 2031 with a CAGR of %during review period.

A managed security operations center (SOC) refers to a centralized location or hub where cybersecurity activities are coordinated and overseen. It typically includes a team of experts who monitor, analyze, detect and respond to potential threats or incidents affecting an organization's information systems and network infrastructure.

The global managed security operations center (SOC) market growth is being driven by the increasing number of cyberattacks, the growing complexity of IT infrastructure, and the increasing demand for compliance with industry regulations.

The increasing number of cyberattacks is a major driver of the growth of the managed SOC market. Cyberattacks are becoming more sophisticated and frequent, and they are costing businesses billions of dollars each year. Managed SOC services can help businesses to detect and respond to cyberattacks more quickly, which can help to reduce the financial impact of these attacks.

The growing complexity of IT infrastructure is another driver of the growth of the managed SOC market. IT infrastructure is becoming increasingly complex, and it is difficult for businesses to keep up with the latest security threats. Managed SOC services can help businesses to manage their IT infrastructure more effectively and to stay up-to-date on the latest security threats.

The increasing demand for compliance with industry regulations is also driving the growth of the managed SOC market. Many industries, such as financial services, healthcare, and government, are subject to strict industry regulations. Managed SOC services can help businesses to comply with these regulations by providing 24/7 monitoring and by reporting on security incidents.
