According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Manufacturing Insurance market size was valued at US$ 166783 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 260576 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 6.3% during review period.

Manufacturing insurance is a comprehensive insurance system specifically designed to protect industrial manufacturing enterprises against risks such as property loss, equipment failure, personal injury, product liability, and business interruption during production, processing, warehousing, transportation, and supply chain operations. Its coverage typically includes multiple modules such as factory equipment and building property insurance, machinery breakdown insurance, product liability insurance, employer's liability insurance, business interruption insurance, and supply chain interruption insurance. Its core function is to help manufacturing enterprises mitigate the financial impact of unforeseen risks in a highly automated, capital-intensive, and globally dependent operating environment, while ensuring production continuity and stable business operations.

As global manufacturing evolves towards intelligent manufacturing, Industry 4.0, and the deep integration of global supply chains, manufacturing insurance is evolving from a traditional property and liability protection tool into a core component of enterprise risk management and supply chain resilience building. On the one hand, the widespread adoption of automated equipment and industrial robots has significantly increased losses from single failures, driving up demand for machinery breakdown insurance and business interruption insurance. On the other hand, global supply chain geopolitical risks, frequent natural disasters, and the reshaping of trade structures have made companies more reliant on supply chain disruption insurance and cross-border risk protection. Simultaneously, strengthened green manufacturing and ESG regulations are also boosting demand for environmental liability insurance and carbon emission-related insurance. Overall, the industry is entering a mature growth phase characterized by 'highly complex risk pricing + data-driven underwriting.'
