Abstracts

The global Micro Short Drama market size is expected to reach $ million by 2030, rising at a market growth of % CAGR during the forecast period (2024-2030).

Micro Short Drama, with a single episode lasting from tens of seconds to about 15 minutes, with a relatively clear theme and main line, and a more continuous and complete storyline, has universal characteristics: simple character relationships, flattened image, single character level, often highlighting certain aspects of the characteristics, with exaggerated colors. The plot is fragmented, emphasizing the fast pace, strong impact and multiple reversals of the plot, and not paying much attention to the continuity of the plot and the structure of the rise and fall. Narrative has jumping, focusing on instant emotions and feelings, not valuing the logical connection between events, and requiring the audience to mobilize their imagination to supplement the omitted parts of the plot.
