The global Modal Rayon market size is expected to reach $ million by 2030, rising at a market growth of % CAGR during the forecast period (2024-2030).

Modal is a type of man-made fiber, a type of semi-man-made fiber, related to rayon. It is made from modal wood pulp, a natural plant fiber. The fiber is usually made by extraction, spinning and other processes, so it is also called modal rayon. Modal rayon is usually used to make various clothing and household items such as underwear, home clothes, T-shirts, skirts, bedding, etc. Its production process is relatively environmentally friendly because its raw materials come from renewable plants and there are relatively few chemical treatments during the production process. Therefore, Modal fiber is also considered an environmentally friendly fiber material.
