Abstracts

Molybdenum is a chemical element with symbol Mo and atomic number 42. The name is from Neo-Latin molybdaenum, from Ancient Greek, meaning lead, since its ores were confused with lead ores.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Molybdenum in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. Molybdenum does not occur naturally as a free metal on Earth; it is found only in various oxidation states in minerals. The free element, a silvery metal with a gray cast, has the sixth-highest melting point of any element. It readily forms hard, stable carbides in alloys, and for this reason most of world production of the element (about 80%) is used in steel alloys, including high-strength alloys and superalloys. Molybdenum is anticipated to find extensive application in the oil and gas industry despite the innate cost ramifications associated with industry. Recovering of oil prices and growing stakeholder confidence are two major forces that are expected to support the growth in consumption of molybdenum by the oil & gas industry. Meanwhile, chemicals & petrochemicals and automotive are among the other important end-use industries of molybdenum.

The worldwide market for Molybdenum is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
