Abstracts

Movie and TV show licensing refers to the process of granting rights to distribute, exhibit, or broadcast copyrighted films and television programs to other parties in exchange for compensation. This process involves legal agreements between the copyright owner (usually the film studio, production company, or television network) and the licensee (such as a television broadcaster, streaming platform, DVD distributor, or international distributor).

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Movie and TV Show Licensing market size was valued at US$ million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD million by 2030 with a CAGR of %during review period.

Consumer demand for diverse and high-quality content drives the movie licensing market. As streaming platforms, cable networks, and broadcasters compete for audience attention, they seek compelling movies to attract and retain subscribers/viewers, creating demand for licensed content. Movie studios and distributors leverage licensing agreements as part of their content monetization strategies. Licensing movies to streaming platforms, television networks, airlines, hotels, and other distribution channels generates additional revenue streams for content owners, contributing to the growth of the licensing market.
