In 2025, global production of Natural Grain Free Pet Food reached approximately 1.1 million metric tons, with an average price of around USD 1,550 per metric ton. Natural Grain Free Pet Food refers to pet foods made from naturally sourced ingredients, formulated without any grains (such as wheat, corn, rice, barley, etc.) and free from artificial additives (such as artificial colors, flavors, and preservatives), characterized by high meat content and low carbohydrate levels, emphasizing the dietary concept of returning to pets' carnivorous nature. Main product forms include dry food, wet food, and treats. Formulations cover single-protein, multi-protein blend, and functional recipes. Target species are primarily canine, with feline products also growing rapidly. Products are characterized by natural ingredients, grain-free formulations, and high meat content. Distribution channels cover online e-commerce platforms, offline pet specialty stores, high-end supermarkets, and veterinary clinics.

The global Natural Grain Free Pet Food market is experiencing steady growth, driven primarily by the deepening pet humanization and premiumization trends, increasing pet owner attention to grain allergies and digestive health issues, the growing popularity of the ancestral diet concept, and the migration of Clean Label consumption trends from human food to pet food. North America is the largest market globally, leading in category innovation and consumption trends; Europe shows steady growth with high attention to natural ingredients and animal welfare; Asia-Pacific is the fastest-growing region, driven by rapidly increasing acceptance of grain-free formulations among high-end consumers in China, Australia, and other markets.
