Abstracts

The global Neck Cream and Mask market size is expected to reach $ 4620 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 8.5% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032). In 2025, global shipments of neck cream and masks are estimated at approximately 112 million units, with an average selling price of around USD 24 per unit. Neck cream and masks are skincare products specifically designed for the neck area, aiming to improve sagging, fine lines, dryness, and dullness. Neck creams are typically offered in lotion or cream form for daily care, while neck masks are often sheet-based or spreadable, providing deep nourishment and firming effects. Formulations commonly include moisturizers, antioxidants, peptide active ingredients, and plant extracts to enhance skin elasticity, increase hydration, and promote collagen production, thereby delaying neck aging. As consumer awareness of neck care rises, neck creams and masks are becoming a rapidly growing subcategory within the skincare market.

From a market perspective, the neck cream and mask segment exhibits increasing product diversification and rising brand concentration. Consumer expectations regarding product efficacy, ingredient safety, and user experience are driving rapid growth in premium and functional offerings. Industry trends indicate that neck care products are evolving toward multifunctional solutions, combining whitening, firming, antioxidant, and moisturizing benefits, with innovative applications increasingly integrated with beauty devices or smart skincare tools. Market consensus suggests that neck creams and masks, combining skincare and aesthetic value, continue to show strong growth potential under the ?refined skincare + anti-aging? consumption trend, while competition will increasingly focus on ingredient innovation, brand trust, and personalized experiences.
