Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Non-alcoholic Steatohepatitis market size was valued at USD 2605.3 million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 9170.5 million by 2030 with a CAGR of 19.7% during review period.

Non-alcoholic steatohepatitis (NASH) is an advanced form of non-alcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD). NAFLD is caused by buildup of fat in the liver. When this buildup causes inflammation and damage, it is known as NASH, which can lead to scarring of the liver.

NASH is a progressive liver disease characterized by fat accumulation in the liver, inflammation, and liver cell damage, typically occurring in individuals who do not consume excessive alcohol. Several factors are driving the growth of the NASH market. Firstly, the rising prevalence of obesity and metabolic disorders, such as diabetes and dyslipidemia, is contributing to the increasing incidence of NASH. Unhealthy lifestyles, sedentary habits, and poor dietary choices are leading to a higher risk of developing NASH, creating a substantial patient population in need of diagnosis and treatment. Secondly, the improved understanding and awareness of NASH among healthcare professionals and the general population have resulted in increased diagnosis rates. As the medical community recognizes the long-term complications and progression of NASH, there is a greater emphasis on identifying patients with NASH and implementing appropriate management strategies.
