According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Non-woven Geotextile market size was valued at USD million in 2022 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD million by 2029 with a CAGR of % during review period.

Non-woven geotextile is a type of geosynthetic material that is made from synthetic fibers, such as polyester or polypropylene, which are mechanically or thermally bonded together. Unlike woven geotextiles, non-woven geotextiles are manufactured by a process that does not involve weaving or knitting the fibers together. Non-woven geotextiles are commonly used in civil engineering and construction projects for various applications. They are primarily used to provide separation, filtration, drainage, and reinforcement functions in soil and rock structures. The material's properties, such as high tensile strength, permeability, and resistance to biological and chemical degradation, make it suitable for a wide range of geotechnical applications.
