SCOPE OF THE REPORT:

This report focuses on the Carvone in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. Carvone is a member of a family of chemicals called terpenoids. Carvone is found naturally in many essential oils, but is most abundant in the oils from seeds of caraway (Carum carvi), spearmint (Mentha spicata), and dill. Natural D-carvone is found in mandarin peel oil, while L-carvone is found in ginger grass oil. Carvone can be classified as L-carvone and D-carvone based on its chemical structure. Gum makers producing a spearmint product have a choice of flavoring with spearmint oil, natural L-carvone (derived from spearmint oil), synthetic L-carvone (from citrus fruits) or combinations, L-carvone is often used to enhance spearmint oil. Since there are not enough spearmint crops to satisfy the demand of spearmint flavor, including L-carvone, the synthetic carvone is more popular in consideration of stable supply and cheaper price. Currently L-carvone is the dominant type of carvone sold on the market, and 81.39% of carvone is L-carvone in 2015.

The worldwide market for Carvone is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly 4.1% over the next five years, will reach 56 million US$ in 2023, from 44 million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
