Abstracts

A nut is a fruit composed of an inedible hard shell and a seed, which is generally edible. In general usage, a wide variety of dried seeds are called nuts, but in a botanical context "nut" implies that the shell does not open to release the seed. Nut Meal is almost the same as "nut flour", but whereas "nut flour" is used to describe nuts ground to a fine powder, for a Nut Meal, the nuts are ground a bit more coarsely, but not as coarse as "finely chopped nuts." It is about the coarseness of cornmeal (or polenta). Nut flours are often drier, because they are usually ground from dried cakes of nut that remain after nuts have been pressed to make oil out of them.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Nut Meals in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application.

Millennials are highly preferring the consumption of healthy and alternatives food options than traditional foods. Companies in the food industry are focusing on offering new and healthier options due to the rising demand from this consumer segment. Millennials have more affinity for fast foods due to the ease of preparation and convenience. As a result, they highly seek balanced diets. This drives the preference for nut recipes since they are cost-effective and are rich in nutrients and offer various health benefits.
