The global Odor-Elimination Automotive Interior Detailing market size is expected to reach $ 2999 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.8% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Odor-Elimination Automotive Interior Detailing is a specialized, source-targeted automotive interior care service that integrates deep surface cleaning, contaminant extraction, odor-causing molecule neutralization, air purification, and long-term odor inhibition. Unlike basic interior cleaning or fragrance-based 'odor masking' services, its core objective is to permanently eliminate unpleasant cabin odors at their root source (rather than temporarily covering them with scents), while preserving the integrity, safety, and appearance of the vehicle's interior materials.

This service addresses both surface-level and deeply embedded odors in porous and hard-to-reach interior components, including carpets, upholstery, headliners, foam padding, door panels, HVAC systems, trunk liners, and hidden cabin cavities. It adheres to strict automotive material safety standards to avoid discoloration, cracking, corrosion, or permanent damage to interior surfaces, and eliminates common odors such as cigarette/marijuana smoke, food and beverage spill residues, mold and mildew from water intrusion, pet urine and dander, bodily fluid contamination, new car chemical off-gassing, and fuel/fluid leak odors. It is a core subcategory of professional automotive detailing, differentiated by its focus on root-cause odor remediation rather than cosmetic cleaning alone.
