Abstracts

Outpatient home therapy provides treatment at the patient's home. Outpatient home therapy provides extra comfort to the patients and is regulated by the Medicare and Medicaid programs. Home therapy is useful when patients are not able to travel to the healthcare units due to lack of transportation or the patient may not be able to participate in the therapy due to travel sickness or due to travel taxing. Sometimes due to the busy schedule of the patient, he is not able to receive therapy at the clinic, so home therapy will be best and convenient.
