Pentest Service is a professional service that conducts in-depth security assessments of target systems, networks, or applications by simulating hacker attacks. Its core purpose is to proactively uncover security vulnerabilities, configuration flaws, and logical flaws in a system, and to patch them before malicious attackers can exploit them. The testing process typically includes information gathering, vulnerability scanning, privilege escalation, and sustained access, comprehensively verifying the true effectiveness of the system's defenses. Unlike standardized vulnerability scanning, penetration testing emphasizes in-depth manual analysis and the exploration of realistic attack paths, ultimately providing a comprehensive report containing vulnerability details, risk levels, and remediation recommendations. It is a crucial means of verifying network security protection capabilities.
