Perfumer's alcohol is a specially denatured alcohol used as a solvent and carrier in the creation of perfumes and fragrances. It is designed to dissolve essential oils, aromatic compounds, and other fragrance ingredients effectively while evaporating quickly to leave behind the desired scent. Unlike regular alcohol, perfumer's alcohol is formulated to be odorless and skin-friendly, making it an ideal medium for blending and preserving the integrity of complex fragrance formulations. It typically consists of ethanol mixed with small amounts of denaturants to render it unsuitable for consumption, ensuring its exclusive use in perfumery and cosmetic applications.
